FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE CONTACT: Jared Cordes

-30-

March 9, 2007 (202) 225-5235

BOYD WORKS TO IMPROVE WATER QUALITY IN NORTH FLORIDA

WASHINGTON, D.C.-Congressman Allen Boyd (D-North Florida) today supported legislation to improve the Clean Water State Revolving Fund is used to enhance water quality by helping local communities in "Throughout North Florida, there is significant demand for water and wastewater treatment expansion at The Administration's Fiscal Year 2008 Budget proposes to reduce the Clean Water State Revolving Fund "Protecting water quality is a major responsibility for local communities and often a tough one with the response to the communities and often a tough one with the response to the communities and often a tough one with the response to the communities and often a tough one with the response to the communities and often a tough one with the response to the communities and often a tough one with the response to the communities and often a tough one with the response to the communities and often a tough one with the response to the communities and often a tough one with the response to the communities and often a tough one with the response to the communities and often a tough one with the response to the communities and often a tough one with the response to the communities and often a tough one with the response to the communities and often a tough one with the response to the communities and often a tough one with the response to the communities and often a tough one with the response to the communities and often a tough one with the communities and the communities and the communities and the communities and the communities are communities.